Hardy students get a lesson in manners

Youngsters dress up for Etiquette Day

BY LES G. MASTERSON

Hardy School first grade student Jasmine Jackson placed a napkin on her lap and looked ravishing in her flowered blouse, long dress and braiding beads in her hair.

Jackson sat patiently waiting for volunteers and teachers to serve everyone in the Hardy Cafetorium. When one girl started to eat her salad, Jackson reminded the fellow first grader that it is not polite to eat before all guests have their food.

With everyone set, the students started with a roll. Jackson picked up her butter and roll and carefully spread the dairy goodness on the bread. Across from Jackson, Erica Pandey glided the butter onto her roll and then licked the remnants from her knife, but etiquette expert Jackson told the fellow first grader, "No, you're not supposed to lick the knife."

Pandey can be excused for not knowing this little piece of etiquette, since the youngster just returned from Disney World and missed the manners lesson the previous day.

The two students were taking part in Hardy's first Etiquette Day on Thursday, Jan. 24. Children, teachers, and parents dressed up in their finest clothes and filed into the cafetorium — called the Hardy Dining Room on that day.

Hardy teacher Patty Egan and PTO co-president Nancy Knoff organized the event, after seeing Brackett's Mary Nolan hold an etiquette day last year, when Hardy students were attending the Eastern Avenue school while their Lake Street building was being renovated.

On Wednesday, Jan. 23, Hardy's students learned such things as how to break bread, wait to eat until everyone is served, and passing on the right from Joyce Hunne-man and Peggy Sorrentino of the Yellow Brick Road in Melrose.

After teachers and parents transformed the cafetorium into a dining room, the first group of diners entered at 11 a.m. Walking in single file, the kindergartners and first graders strolled to their tables, which included a placement set for each student of a plate, two forks, a knife, a spoon, a roll, and a small container of butter.

The students, dressed in suits and ties and dresses, also included some interesting fashion senses, including one boy who wore sneakers, which were untied, a suit jacket, and a belt which was wrapped around his jacket and another boy who wore a clip-on tie that wasn't actually clipped to his collar.

Another student who showed her originality was Melissa Gryan, a kindergarten

Lights approved for MM trail

BY DANA FRONCZAK

Permanent lighting will be installed along the easternmost portion of the Donald R. Marquis Minuteman Trail in coming weeks after Board of Selectmen approval Monday.

The lighting comes in response to a rash of attacks on women traveling on the path near the Alewife train station. While there have been no assaults so far in 2002, Town Manager Phil Farrington said, "we have an obligation to make it as safe as possible."

Funding obtained from the commonwealth by state Sen. Robert Haver (D-Arlington) will light the portion of the trail from Varnum Street to the Cambridge line.

Up until now, temporary floodlights have shined skyward, illuminating the area and everything else around it. But soon several new lights will shine directly on the stretch of the path that many use to walk to and from work.

Selectman Diane Mahon, who was the one who called Haver and got the wheels of state government moving, raised a question as to whether adding lighting increases or decreases the chance of crime, based on some concerns from residents.

"You're always going to get different opinions on this," Farrington said. "More believe lighting is good than believe lighting is bad."

Board members had worried that adding more lighting on the path would shine into nearby homes and break a promise to residents that the trail would only constitute a recreational path and not turn into a 24-hour thoroughfare.

"But for all practical purposes, the bikepath begins on Varnum

River Street station robbed at gunpoint

BY LES G. MASTERSON

Police are investigating another gas station robbery this week, after a man fled the Gulf Station on River Street with around $150 on Monday.

A gas station attendant told police that a man greeted him with "hello," while he walked on River Street around 6 p.m. The man continued toward Decatur Street. Approximately 15 minutes later, the man reappeared and said to the attendant, "Do you like living?"

When the victim responded in the affirmative, the suspect lifted his sweatshirt, showing the attendant a black handgun, and said, "Then you better give me all your money because I have a burner and I'll blast you."

The employee handed the robber his money and the thief allegedly told the victim that there were four friends hiding in the bushes, who would shoot the attendant if he did anything before the suspect fled the scene.

With that, the suspect ran over the nearby bridge toward Medford and the attendant called police, according to police.

In addition to the victim, two people also witnessed the robbery. The suspect is described as a black man, in his 20s or early-30s, about 5 feet, 7 inches, 200 pounds, with a beard, and possibly a gold cap on a right upper rear tooth. The man was reportedly wearing a brown leather bomber jacket, a black hooded sweatshirt, dark pants, and dark shoes.

The robbery came two weeks after four men were allegedly involved in a string of armed robberies in Arlington and Lexington, including the Texaco Gas Station in East Arlington, the Park Avenue Gulf Station, the Donald R. Marquis Minuteman Trail, and

Alewife project delay leaves activists divided

BY DANA FRONCZAK

No news is bad news — or is it?

The stance of Arlington officials regarding another lengthy delay in the Cambridge Combined Sewer Overflow (CSO) project is hedging between protesting another 18 months of waiting or letting it go without a fight.

If they successfully protest the variance requested by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority, the project might happen more quickly. But, if they wait, the town might get a better project in the long run that results in cleaner Alewife Brook water.

But, then again, the state is slashing money to the MWRA this year, which might set off even further delays on projects.

"I'm between a rock and a hard place with this request for a variance," said Selectman Kathleen Kiely Dias. "An 18-month delay means 18 months of continued CSO, although there has been some work done." On the other hand, she said, "I'm concerned with the delay, but could we get better water quality if this takes longer?"

CSOs are the vestiges of the antiquated Boston sewer system, the oldest in the country. When

Center for the Arts exhibit explores four women's views on midlife

BY BRENDA MILLEY
CORRESPONDENT

Photographic artist Andrea Geyer said she thought midlife crisis was a "big joke," but is not so sure now.

"I'm healthy. I have a nice family, a great husband, but there came a point when you become aware of your own mortality and the choices you've made," said Geyer, age 42, at the opening of "Reflections at Midlife" at the Arlington Center for the Arts' Gibbs Gallery last Thursday. "And sometimes having a family has limited those choices. You reassess how far you've come and the dreams you once had based on your values. You come to a place where you want to bring your life into accord with those values."

In addition to Geyer, there are three other artists — Karen Davis, Nancy Hart, and Elizabeth Buckley — whose work will remain at the gallery until March 2.

The content of the show is what Buckley felt lured attendees to the opening night.

"This might be a topic that isn't common. Women were drawn to it especially. I think people knew it wasn't going to be just pretty pictures. There was going to be substance to it," said Buckley.

The artists define their work collectively in a group statement. The end of which reads, "Female role models, idealizations, the ephemeral essence of relationships, comparisons with cultural ideals, recalling decisive moments — these are the pivots of human experience on which our work turns."

Karen Davis

"Feel free to poke around," said photographic artist Karen Davis.

There were mementos on the table that showed the viewer the artist's memories of her mother, Ida Davis, a glass candleholder with a scented green candle, a tray of small, old photos, and a hand-made book of sayings her mother used to say called, "The Ida Davis Book of Everyday Expressions."

On the pages of the hand-made red paper book, are common phrases like "It's raining cats and dogs," "It's a labor of love," "Look for the silver lining," "Time flies when you're having fun," and "You know, I may be old — but I'm young at heart."

Davis shows two pictures within the same frame. On the left is the photographer's mother, holding Karen adoringly to her face when she was a baby. The picture to the right shows a close up of Ida's frail, age-spotted hand held by the artist's own hand amidst the sheets of the bed in which Ida passed away. This loving tribute is called "The First and Last Picture with My Mother" and one of the more serious pieces of Karen Davis' work.

The majority of her work at this show has a stabbing sense of humor.

She exposes herself in her self-portraiture. One photo shows Davis taking a picture of her reflection in a fun-house mirror at an amusement park. The mirror has distorted the shape of her body making her hips look large and her long legs short. Her aging physical being has fallen short in the Human rights dialogue explores stereotypes in media

The Arlington Human Rights Commission will present a community dialogue on "The Mickey Mouse Monopoly: How Disney and the Media Culture Promote Stereotypes" tonight, Thursday, Jan. 31.

Disney movies, together with the wide range of toys and other products linked to them, usually receive praise as wholesome family entertainment. The newly-released educational video, "Mickey Mouse Monopoly: Disney, Childhood, and Corporate Culture," takes a close and critical look at the world these films create. Using the video as a starting point, Professor Diane Levin will look at how the Disney and the media culture contribute to stereotyped thinking.

Levin, Ph.D., is a professor of education at Wheelock College. Professor Levin is an internationally known expert on how violence in media culture and the wider society affects children, families, and schools and how to counteract the problems that violence in society creates. She is the author of six books, including "Remote Control Childhood: Combating the Hazards of Media Culture."

The event will take place at Robbins Memorial Library Community Room, 700 Massachusetts Ave. Refreshments will be served at 7 p.m. and the video and dialogue will begin at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited to this free event, which is sponsored by the Arlington Human Rights Commission and co-sponsored by the Arlington Family Connection and the Arlington Safe Schools Task Force.

"The Mickey Mouse Monopoly" is the 10th in the Arlington Human Rights Commission's series of Arlington Dialogues.

The commission was established by Town Meeting in 1993 to serve as a mechanism for addressing issues of unlawful discrimination. In addition to addressing complaints, the commission also works to advance issues related to the fair and equal treatment of all individuals by working with town government, the school department, law enforcement, and other town boards and commissions.

Questions about the event may be directed to Human Rights Commission at 781-316-3250.

Fire Department adds five recruits

Arlington Fire Services Director Richard Maimone announced that five members of the 148th graduating class of the Massachusetts Firefighting Academy's 55-day Recruit Firefighting Program are Arlington firefighters.

Michael Kelly, Tracey Mullen, Ryan Melly, Joseph Palmieri, and Paul Houser are the new recruits.

This rigorous professional training provides the newest firefighters with the basic skills to effectively and safely perform their jobs. This program is offered, tuition-free, by the Massachusetts Fire Academy, a division of the Department of Fire Services.

At the Massachusetts Firefighting Academy, they learn all these skills and more from certified fire instructors who are also experienced firefighters. Students learn all the basic skills they need to respond to fires and to contain and control them.

They are also given training in public fire education, hazardous material incident mitigation, flammable liquids, stress management, water rescue procedures, confined space rescue techniques, and rappelling. The intensive, 11-week program for municipal firefighters involves classroom instruction, physical fitness training, firefighter skills training and live firefighting practice.

Students receive classroom training in all basic firefighter skills. They practice first under non-fire conditions and then during controlled fire conditions. To graduate, students must demonstrate proficiency in life safety, search and rescue, ladder operations, water supply, pump operation, and fire attack.

Fire attack operations range from mailbox fires to multiple floor or multiple room structural fires. Upon successful completion of the Recruit Program all students have met national standards of National Fire Protection Association 1001 and are certified to the level of Firefighter I and II by the Massachusetts Fire Training Council.

Entrance age, full-day fee discussed

BY DANA FRONCZAK

The recommendations to change the age at which students can enter kindergarten was sent back to a subcommittee for further review because of reaction from preschool administrators.

The School Committee's Policy and Procedures Subcommittee Chairman Martin Thrope said the recommendation needed some minor revisions, but he also wanted to engage parents, teachers and administrators in another round of talks to ensure that "this plan works for everybody."

Up until now, Arlington was one of a handful of communities to accept kindergarten students who reached their fifth birthday by Dec. 31 of a given year. The new recommendations call for the date to be pushed back over a period of five years incrementally, with waivers allowed for students and parents until 2005.

In 2005, a student will have to turn 5 by Aug. 31 to enter kindergarten with no exceptions or waivers available.

"I agree that it is a good idea to send it back because some of the language could be tightened up," said School Committee member Paul Schlichtman, who also serves on the subcommittee. "But I thought we had a good compromise plan here."

Also related to kindergarten, Superintendent of Schools Kay Donovan announced that for the next school year, the school will demand the $500 payment for full-day kindergarten tuition before school starts.

She said this is an attempt to generate more revenue. Donovan also addressed the statements of Paul Sheehan, a kindergarten parent who objected to the continued tuition payments when other programs in the surrounding area are free.

"We provide a good value for the dollar and we're trying to eliminate the cost, but it's just not possible this year," Donovan said.

She indicated that the average charge for all-day kindergarten is about $2,000, with some schools charging as much as $3,300.

A survey done by The Advocate that requested kindergarten tuition for the 10 closest suburban communities, however, reveals that of the six schools that offer full-day programs, none of them actually charge a fee.

In the case of nearby Burlington, the school system offers a three-quarter kindergarten day for free.

Donovan said, of 401 children in kindergarten in the Arlington Public Schools, "I think 399 are in the full-day program and one is in the process of changing over (to the full-day program)."

Thrope recommended developing a strategy for phasing out kindergarten tuition within three years.

Firefighter exam deadline Friday

The commonwealth of Massachusetts Human Resources Division will hold a civil service examination for entry-level firefighter, for cities and towns, on April 27. Applications must be filed or postmarked no later than Friday, Feb. 1.

Application and information about eligibility requirements, application fees, and the examination process are available at Human Resources

Division, Customer Services Unit, One Ashburton Place, Boston, or by calling 617-727-3777 ext. 246 or toll-free at 1-800-392-6178 ext. 246. Ryan: Police have implemented most recommendations

BY DANA FRONCZAK
STAFF WRITER

A year after a police management study called for more officers on Arlington's streets, many of the recommendations provided in the study have been achieved, said Police Services Director Fred Ryan Monday.

But the department has only hired five of the 15 recommended police officers and prospects appear dim to hire more this year with local and state resources stretched to the limit.

In one of his first moves as second vice president of the National League of Cities, Board of Selectmen Chairman Charles Lyons lobbied Director of Homeland Security Tom Ridge to provide more local funding as part of the Bush Administration's increase in homeland security monies in 2003. Ryan agreed wholeheartedly.

"All the funding is going to the federal and state levels, but when someone calls '911' we're the ones answering the phone," said Ryan.

Lyons wants to get federal funding to increase training for emergency personnel in order to establish a better overall disaster response plan for Arlington.

"We do not have adequate training for our police officers. We never have," Lyons said.

The hiring of the first five officers was helped by a $375,000 federal grant, but the grant shrinks for 2003 and the town will have to assume the leftover cost.

"I'd like to as soon as possible move on that goal of 15," said Selectman Diane Mahon.

Despite the budget restrictions, police will push forward with two major initiatives this year. One change is the very name of the department. Now known officially as Police Services under the Department of Community Safety, the town wants to abolish that moniker and establish independent Arlington Police and Fire departments.

While little will change within the management and organizational structure, the move to an independent department intends to boost the status of the department and its officers' morale.

But the departments do hope to establish separate fire and police headquarters. Both are now located in the same office of the Community Safety Building. A study to assess the town's fire station needs was delayed because of the Sept. 11 attacks; once the study's findings are released, both departments will have a better sense of how the two can be separated.

Town Manager Phil Farrington and Ryan also both want to restructure the town's emergency dispatch system. Most notably they want to hire a supervisor for a group of nine dispatchers that have no direct supervision, Ryan said.

Upon hearing that group has no boss, Selectman Kathleen Kiely Dias said, "We're at a huge risk (not having supervision), both in terms of community safety as an employer."

Right now, Police Capt. Richard Kennefick supervises dispatch on an interim basis.

"The job of dispatchers has evolved on so many levels in terms of computer technology and wireless technology," Ryan said, adding that the state has organized a dispatch academy for training.

The town estimates that it will cost $45,000 to pay for a dispatch supervisor.

Of the 29 recommendations that the Crest Police Study advocates, 18 have been completed in full, one has been completed in part (hiring new officers) and three are being addressed at this year's Town Meeting. Two await negotiations with the police and fire unions, two await the results of the fire station study, two others the department decided to take no action on, and one (the dispatch supervisor) is being handled on an interim basis.

The department elected to not create a Technology Subcommittee, saying that the current Management Information Systems department is "outstanding." The department has also decided to not hire reserve police officers.

Among notable accomplishments, Police Services has stepped up park and walk patrols and bicycle patrols, created an Internal Affairs Unit, and added one additional captain and two lieutenants, according to Ryan.

The director said, in a memo to the board, that he's proud of the accomplishments "in a time that has been particularly challenging to municipal law enforcement." In the past year, police have dealt with multiple armed robberies for the painkiller drug OxyContin, a rash of false scares over anthrax, muggings and burglaries in East Arlington, and numerous indecent assaults on the Donald R. Marquis Minuteman Trail, which remain unsolved.

State reps holding office hours

• State Rep. Jim Marzilli will hold office hours Friday, Feb. 1 from 9 to 11 a.m. at the Council on Aging, 27 Maple St. Rep. Marzilli holds office hours on the first and third Fridays of the month.

During this time, residents can come to discuss their concerns about town and state matters, legislation, and problems they are having with state agencies.

Rep. Marzilli can also be contacted at his Boston office (617) 722-2460 or Rep.JamesMarzil-li@hou.state.ma.us.

• Rep. Anne M. Paulsen will hold office hours in Arlington on Friday, Feb. 1, from 1 to 2 p.m. and on Wednesday, Feb. 13, from 7 to 8 p.m. at the Fox Library, at the corner of Cleveland Street and Massachusetts Avenue.

All East Arlington residents are welcome to come and meet Rep. Paulsen, to let her know about concerns they have, or to ask for help with legislation or in dealing with state agencies.

Former town employee pleads guilty to assaults

DePierro given two years probation

BY DANA FRONCZAK
STAFF WRITER

A former Arlington town employee will serve two years' probation after he pled guilty to two counts of indecent assault and battery on an Arlington High School student.

Michael DePierro, 37, whose last address was reported to be in Billerica, pled guilty to two counts of indecent assault and battery Thursday, Jan. 24. Seth Horowitz of the Middlesex County District Attorney's Office said Monday that DePierro received two concurrent two-year probationary terms for the charges.

DePierro formerly worked as a building craftsman for the Arlington Redevelopment Board, where he maintained properties owned and operated by that board. Personnel Director Caryn Cove reported that DePierro had only recently resigned from his job on Friday, Jan. 25, despite being placed on unpaid suspension since June 2000.

Horowitz said other charges against DePierro were either dismissed or "filed without a finding." One charge of assault with intent to rape and another charge of indecent assault and battery were disposed of by the Middlesex Superior Court. A judge ruled that two other charges of assault and battery were to be placed on file with no ruling.

In addition to the probation,

DePierro must have no contact with the victim, who is now 18, and must be evaluated for sex offender treatment. Additional conditions may apply to his probation if he is determined to be dangerous to others, Horowitz said.

Sex Offender Registry Board Director of Communication and Legislation Charlie McDonald said the charges DePierro were convicted of require him to register as a sex offender.

A grand jury indicted DePierro in June 2000 after Billerica police arrested him May 8 of that year on a warrant sought by Arlington. Then-Sgt. James Moran told The Advocate in an interview in December of that year that the girl had reported the crimes to an Arlington High School teacher in April 2000.

Moran said the girl told the teacher that she had been sexually assaulted repeated times during a two-to three-week period in December 1999. He added that the victim told the teacher that she had been assaulted in numerous places, including the Arlington Senior Center and in the Custodial Department of the high school.

The alleged rape attempt, which was dismissed by the court, occurred at a private residence in Arlington, said Director of Police Services Fred Ryan at the time.

According to Moran, DePierro recognized the girl from an elementary school she had attended. The first time he saw her, DePierro commented how much she had grown and touched her inappropriately, said police.

ROBBINS LIBRARY EVENTS

Fractured workshop

Love to act wacky? Well join the Arlington Children's Theater at Robbins Library for a Fractured Fairy Tales Workshop on Friday, Feb. 8 from 3 to 4:30 p.m.

In this workshop, Susan Becker of the ACT helps kids create characters from classic fairy tales and then act out their own variations of these familiar tales. Children work on both setting a scene and character development and they have lots of fun.

As this is expected to be a popular program, children aged 6 to 12 are asked to sign up for the program. Sign up can be done in person at the Children's Desk of the Robbins Library or by calling 781-316-3234. This workshop is presented through a grant from the Russell Fund.

Sing-alongs update

The Robbins Library's Infant and Toddler Sing-alongs are hugely popular and consequently the library must limit the number of people who can attend. To control the numbers of children and caretakers attending, the Children's Department has begun issuing tickets.

Those who wish to attend the Spring sessions of the sing-along, which will run from March through May must register and pick up a ticket for either the "green" or the "yellow" session. Tickets allow you to attend on a two weeks on and two weeks off basis.

You must re-register even if you have ticket for the Winter session and have been coming in January and February. Registration will begin on Feb. 6 and will be on a first come, first served basis, until all spaces in the "green" and "yellow" sessions have been filled.

Tickets may be picked up beginning Feb. 12. Once you are registered, your ticket can be picked up at any time that the Children's Room is open. You will attend only on the dates shown on your ticket. To avoid confusion please co-operate with this rule.

Chess club

The popular Thursday evening drop-in chess club begins a second session at the Robbins Library on Feb. 14 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in the library community room.

Chess club is aimed at children in grades 3 to 5.

Chess club will run every Thursday evening from Feb. 14 to March 21. For more information, please call the Robbins Library at 781-316-3234.

Man charged with assaulting elderly aunt

BY LES G. MASTERSON
STAFF WRITER

A 36-year-old Epping Street resident is being held without bail after he allegedly assaulted his elderly aunt Thursday, Jan. 24.

Police arrested Frank R. Senesi Jr., 52 Epping St., and charged him with assault and battery of a person over the age of 60.

"We are discussing the matter with the DA's office to see what, if any, additional charges will be sought," said Police Services Director Fred Ryan.

Firefighters responded to the Epping Street home around 4 p.m. Jan. 24 after a family member found the victim yelling for help and bloodied at the bottom of her basement stairs. The woman told firefighters that her nephew had grabbed her arm and pushed her down the stairs at around 9 or 10 a.m. that morning, at which point police responded to the scene.

Officers arrived to find the woman at the bottom of stairs, with her head covered in blood and her eyes swollen shut and purple. The woman also suffered bruises to her right leg, both arms, wrist, and chest area. Where firefighters and officers found the woman, there was also blood on the bottom two stairs, walls, and basement floor.

'We are discussing the matter with the DA's office to see what, if any, additional charges will be sought.'

FRED RYAN
POLICE SERVICES DIRECTOR

Police were unable to speak with the victim because of her injuries and firefighters transported the woman to Lahey Clinic. Her injuries are not considered life-threatening, according to Ryan.

Later that evening, police interviewed Senesi and arrested the man.

Ryan said Monday that police are taking this case "seriously" and continue to investigate the matter.

"We're investigating to find out what events led up to the [alleged incident]," said Ryan.

The director added that police are "not aware" of any previous incidents involving the victim and the suspect.

Senesi's next court date is a pretrial conference on Feb. 13.

Show continues focus on Afghanistan

Post-conflict reconstruction of Afghanistan is the focus of the latest Mary Lou Bigelow program.

Humayun Hamidzade, a graduate student at The Fletcher School of Law & Diplomacy, is studying humanitarian assistance. Formerly he was connected with the United Nations working on a World Bank program for Afghanistan. His dedication, clearly, is to his country — Afghanistan.

Hamidzade, who is part of an advisory team from Tufts University to the US Agency for International Development, sees three major transitions ahead: a security transition from war to peace, a political transition from warlordism and anarchy to a legitimate representative governance if not an immediate democracy, and a socio-economic transition from a shadow criminalized economy to an open and progressive economy.

Reconstruction, he emphasizes, provides "incentives" for all stakeholders.

Volunteer crewmembers for this ACTV 8 series include Producer Host Bigelow, Directors Maureen Jackson and Steve Ranieri, camera operators Marsha Browne, Daniel Parsignault, audio technician Dan O'Connell and graphics operator Maureen Jackson. Scott Flowers designed the flower arrangements.

The show airs on Arlington Cable TV Channel 8 on Monday and Wednesday at 6:30 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday at 11:30 a.m. and Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. For cable-viewers in Cambridge, the show is broadcast on Channel 10 each Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

WHAT'S HAPPENING

Cats need homes

The Alliance for Animals Cat Adoption Center is having its annual Valentine's Day Open House on Sunday, Feb. 10, from 2 to 5 p.m. at 1241 Mass. Ave., across from Dunkin' Donuts.

Come and see the cats, meet the staff and volunteers, and find out more about your local animal shelter. There will be door prizes, crafts for sale and refreshments. (No adoptions will be done at the open house.)

Please call 781-648-6822 for more information.

Arts meeting

The Arlington Center for the Arts invites all members of the community to participate in an open "theatre space" brainstorming session to envision what a remodeled auditorium space at the arts center might look like and how the space could best serve artists and audience members. Input from a variety of users — individual performers, local community organizations, and businesses — is welcome.

The meeting will take place on Tuesday, Feb. 12 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in the Arlington Center for the Arts Auditorium, 41 Foster St. Refreshments will be served.

For more information, contact the Arlington Center for the Arts office at 781-648-6220.

Book group

A monthly parent/teacher book discussion group meets at the Thompson School library on Wednesday, Feb. 13 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. The book group, dedicated to discussing good children's literature, will discuss Esperanza Rising by Pam Munoz Ryan this month.

All interested adults are welcome to join the discussion. It is sponsored by the Arlington School Department Title I program and Library/Media program and the Robbins Library Russell Fund. Thompson School is located on North Union Street in East Arlington. The group will meet monthly through April.

For more information, please call the Robbins Library at 781-316-3234.

Story times

Story times for preschool children will resume in January at the Fox Branch Library.

Stories for 2 1/2 to 3 year olds will be held on Tuesdays at 10 a.m. from Jan. 15 through Feb. 12 and for 4 to 5 year olds at 10:30 a.m. on the same days. The sessions of stories and finger plays will be followed by a simple craft. Please sign your child up for these programs by calling the Fox Branch Library at 781-316-3198.

Lap-Sit stories for babies and toddlers up to age 2 1/2 will take place on Thursdays until Feb. 14 at 10 a.m. A brief story time is followed by a simple art activity, age appropriate toys and a chance to socialize. Children must be accompanied by an adult who will sit on the floor and participate in the songs and singing games. No sign up is required for this program.

Fox Branch Library is located at 175 Massachusetts Ave., on the corner of Massachusetts Avenue and Cleveland Street. Hours are Tuesday, Thursday and Friday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Wednesday 1 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Pot luck supper

The Arlington American Legion Post 39 Auxiliary is holding a pot luck supper from 4 to 8 p.m. Saturday, March 2 at the Post 39 Hall, 370 Massachusetts Ave. Tickets are $5 for adults, $2.50 for children.

Stray Pets in Need of Massachusetts, SPIN, has kicked-off its fifth annual Pet Photo Contest to benefit area stray pets.

For a donation of $10, up to three pet photos can be submitted to the contest. Donations will be used for veterinary care and spay/neuter of area stray pets. The deadline for entries is Feb. 26 — Spay Day.

To enter, submit photos along with name, address and phone number to SPIN, PO Box 812143, Wellesley, MA 02482. An independent panel of judges will choose the winning photos (photos showing pets wearing collar/tags a plus). Photos will not be returned but will be used by SPIN for humane education and fundraising. For more information call 781-235-1218.

This year, one photo will also be chosen for a Community Choice Award. Join SPIN for its annual Winter Fest on Feb. 27 from 6 to 8 p.m. at Deerfield Senior Center on Route 9 Wellesley to vote on the Community Choice Award photo winner. For more information on Winter Fest, call 781-235-8460.

SPIN was formed by local Animal Control Officer, Sue Webb, to provide extra veterinary care, expand adoptions and humane educational materials above those provided by limited town budgets. Mission statement: Promoting the well-being of animals and responsible human/animal relationships. For more information visit www.straypetsinneed.org or call 781-370-3232.

SCHOOL NOTES

Walk, Dallin survey

Sixty percent of respondents to the Safe Routes to School parent survey last November want their children to walk more often and 57 percent are interested in forming a walking group.

The 129 families responding represent 175 children, nearly half of the Dallin student population.

Of those responding, parents liked having children walk to school for the following top responses: exercise and fresh air, health benefits, not dealing with traffic/parking problems, quality time together, and to encourage neighborhood/community.

After-school Spanish

Are there more students interested in after-school Spanish? Kristen Donahue will be teaching Spanish on Wednesdays from 2:20-3:20 to third, fourth and fifth graders if a minimum of nine students enroll. Seven students had signed up as of Jan. 25.

They will produce and perform a play at the end of the 15 weeks. Last December, the students performed "Blanca Nieves" ("Snow White"). Call Rose Udics at 781-646-9143 (her e-mail is udigom@rcn.com) or Kathleen Wolf at 781-646-1914.

Upcoming at Dallin:

- The annual pancake breakfast is set for Saturday, Feb. 9, 8 to 11 a.m. Adults $3.50, children, $2.50 with a maximum family charge of $12. If interested in volunteering, call Fran Streifeld at 641-3807.

Finberg celebration

Pauline Finberg, an institution at Arlington High School, is retiring at the end of the school year, and plans are under way to celebrate all she has done for the school. An evening is set for Thursday, May 23, at 6:30 p.m. at the Danversport Yacht Club, 131 Elliot St., Danvers.

Those involved in arranging the celebration ask you to join them in honoring Ms. Finberg and her 35 years of teaching, coaching, mentoring, advising and encouraging the students of Arlington High School.

Please contact one of the following for additional information about the event and to be added to the invitation mailing list. E-mail to: G.Lieb@Verizon.net or blmaye@msn.com.

Certificate of mastery

Thirteen students from Arlington High School have received the 2001 Stanley Z. Koplik Certificate of Mastery Award. In all, 1,859 students from 214 high schools across the state received this award.

These certificates are awarded in celebration and recognition of their mastery of skills and knowledge, as demonstrated through their accomplishments in the fields of mathematics, science, arts, and humanities.

To meet the criteria for this award, applicants received qualifying scores on the MCAS tests and demonstrated two additional qualifying accomplishments that included at least one Advanced Placement (AP) or SAT II test score.

In addition to the honor itself, recipients attending Massachusetts public colleges and universities are eligible for tuition waivers. These waivers cover tuition (not fees or room and board) for up to four years (a value of about $700 to $1,700 per year, depending upon the school) and are contingent upon maintaining a 3.3 minimum grade-point average.

Recipient from the Class of 2001 are: Thomas W. Holley, Keith J. Joyce, Eileen Y. Leung, Michelle A. Knowlan and Noah A. Winkler.

Class of 2002: Savaniani Bhanacharya, Richard A. Bruni, Diana H. Jeffrey, James R. Maldonis, Michelle P. Megna, Alexander H. Parsons and Julia A. Young.

Stratton Math Night

Stratton Math Night, an effort of various PTO committees, drew an estimated 270 people Jan. 17.

Margaret Petrela, Annie LaCourt and Sharon Hannon helped plan the evening in the Stratton auditorium, which included a variety of math-related events.

Major input came from Principal Alan Brown, Nadine Solomon and Stratton teachers. Judith Sagan, Michelle Hamblin, Pam Edelman and Diane McAleer helped with preparing. Sagan also did all graphic design and Bernadette Scutti helped to secure volunteers and to set up.

The PTO Refreshments Committee provided refreshments. Many people volunteered. They include those mentioned plus:

Jack Duranceau, Jamie Wright, Wendy Richter, Bob Edelman, Marjorie Howard, Narinder Guhanian, Nina Martorana, Michael Hamblin, Suzanne and Solomon Owayda, Kim O'Leary, Betsey Riley, Albert Duarte, Rob Adams, Ferris Donham, Chuck Hannon, Pat O'Leary, and Deanne Dupont.

The 133 children present was the number registered. They included 14 kindergartners, 30 first graders, 32 second graders, 26 third graders, 10 fourth graders, 8 fifth graders, and 13 siblings not in school.

"An excellent time was had by all," said LaCourt, the Science Committee chairman. "We do plan on a follow up with a take-home packet and we are planning a science fair for next fall."

Upcoming at Stratton:

- Next PTO meeting, Wednesday, Feb. 6 at 7 p.m., auditorium.

- An Asian Lunar New Year Celebration commemorating the year of the horse is tentatively scheduled for Feb. 8. This is a schoolwide event, and volunteers are needed to help run it. If you would like to help, contact Leslie Swartz (781-641-3556) or Sharon Hannon (781-63-3119).

- An organizational meeting for a Colonial Day, to take place on May 31, is set for Judi Paradis' house Jan. 30 at 7:30 p.m. This is a daylong event for third grades from Stratton and Peirce. Information: Michelle Hamblin (781-646-8805).

- The Family Dance on March 1, a fund-raising event. Included will be a raffle for class baskets, as well as pizza and dancing.

- Other PTO events coming up

Liz Buchanan will perform Tuesday, Feb. 19 at the Peirce School as part of Peirce School's third annual enrichment benefit.

Peirce enrichment benefit set

Arlington singer, guitarist and songwriter Liz Buchanan is set to perform Tuesday, Feb. 19, at 10:30 a.m. on behalf of Peirce School's third annual enrichment benefit.

The program, "Sing-along and Musical Fun with Liz Buchanan and Friends," is scheduled to be held at Calvary United Methodist Church, 300 Mass. Ave. Snow date is Feb. 20.

Performing with Buchanan will be flutist Mies Boet-Whitaker and percussionist Bob Schulz. This is during school vacation week.

All proceeds will go to the Peirce School enrichment program. Buchanan is popular among families with young children. Her CD "Make It a Song, Song, Song," released this year, was named a 2001 Finalist for Best New Artist for Young Children, awarded by the Children's Music Web, the only award judged by children and their families.

"Antelope Dance" and her new train number, "Chugga Chugga Ding Ding," are top singles on the local kid pop charts.

In addition to playing and teaching the flute, Boet-Whitaker is a teacher in the Arlington school system. She accompanies Buchanan on the CD.

Schulz performs percussion programs for schools as well. Advance ticket prices are $4 for adults and $3 for children.

At the door: $5 for adults and $4 for children. Those 12 months old and younger are free. Refreshments, CDs and tapes will be for sale.

To buy advance tickets, call Donna (781-646-8514).

include another opportunity to purchase Stratton School T-shirts, hats and other merchandise, candy sales, an ice-skating party, a TV turn-off week social event and the Family Ice Cream Social and Picnic. A Family Fun Fair is set for May 18.

Bishop Bear Fair

Organizers are seeking sponsors now for rides and games for the Bishop Bear Fair, the school's main fund-raiser for the year, to be held Saturday, May 18.

Sponsors can choose a specific ride or game such as the Moonwalk, Giant Slide, Pony Rides, etc., or can simply donate funds to help defray costs for the fair.

Businesses, families and individuals wishing to sponsor an event at the Bishop Bear Fair should contact Cindy Starks (781-646-8887 and acm@mediaone.net) or Chris Doherty (dotclan1@msn.com).

Brackett Select Chorus

The Elementary Select Chorus has the honor of being invited to sing at the Massachusetts Music Educator's All-State Conference on March 14.

The current Brackett newsletter names the following members from its school:

Lauren Adelman, Michael Barbosa, Nathaniel Boit, Nicholas Chvany, Nick Eidson, Daniel Fenichel, Ashley Fitzgerald, Simon Ginet, Heather Kobayashi, Olivia Kostigan, Jackson Kusiak, Conor O'Neill, Rebecca Penney, Alisa Peterson, Michelle Rosie, Jazmin Russian, Deirdre Sheehan, Kayla Wade, Emma Wilson, Alice Xiang, and David Young.

Upcoming at Brackett:

- Storyteller Norah Dooley performs "Stories from my Neighbors" Tuesday, Feb. 5. Performances include a series of stories based on the different traditions and ethnic backgrounds of her neighbors. Sponsored by the Cultural Enrichment Committee and supported in part by the Russell Fund. Friends and family of the Brackett community are welcome at 9 a.m. or the 10 a.m. performances in the dining room.

- Wednesday, Feb. 6, PTO meeting, library, 7 p.m.

- The second grades are having a Valentine's Day fund-raiser to help pay for their upcoming trip to see "Sleeping Beauty." Order fresh roses or tulips from Wilson Farms by Friday, Feb. 8. Pickup on Valentine's Day from 2 to 3 p.m. Order forms are available in the lobby. Questions? Call Denise Healy, 781-643-7963.

- Heritage Day planning meeting, 7 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 13, in the cafeteria. Come with detailed description of your country's presentation.

- Academic enrichment committee to meet Wednesday Feb. 13, at 7:30 p.m. in the Brackett science room. Contact Andrea Gwosdow at 781/646-4251 or andrea@gwosdow.com.

Thompson fest

Planning is under way for the Thompson International Festival, to take place March 23. Volunteers are needed to serve on organizing committees. If you are interested in helping out, contact Emily Morrison (781-648-7539) or Vicki Rose (781-316-3774).

Upcoming at Thompson:

- Scholastic book fair, Feb. 5-7; volunteers needed during the school day when students visit the book fair with their classes. A volunteer sign-up was sent home. Return the sign-up if you can help.

Profits from this book fair are used to provide books to teachers for their classroom libraries. Families can also add to the classroom library by participating in the classroom wish-list program.

Teachers will make a list of books that they would like to see in their classroom and that will add to their students' knowledge and imagination. A classroom wish-list display will be at the book fair. Consider donating a book to your child's classroom library. The books will become a permanent part of the classroom library and every gift will be recognized with a bookplate identifying your family or child as the donor.

Upcoming at Hardy

- Next PTO meeting, Feb. 6. All encouraged to attend; new ideas always welcome.

- Movie night, the spaghetti dinner night and the annual ice-skating party. The latter is set for March 16, 7 to 9 p.m. Look for information concerning the community-service project, which will include food drives, cleanups and other school and community-related projects.

Students bring message of diversity

Teens attend Civil Rights Teams program

BY AMY DIMASI
CORRESPONDENT

"In a country known for its diversity," reads a pamphlet from the National Conference for Community and Justice (NCCJ), "students still face the challenges of bias, bigotry, and racism in their schools and communities."

Arlington High School students Emma Abby, Rachael Lewiton, Laurel Mitchell, Tayriki Adams, Rebecca Sender, Trey Lowry, Julia Young, and Viennese Ortiz are trying to change that by participating in a Civil Rights Teams program (CRT), which is run through a partnership between the NCCJ and the Governor's Task Force on Hate Crimes, which aims to open the minds of the adolescent community.

For the third year in a row, a diverse group of students from 17 area high schools attended a two-day retreat in Sharon.

"It's always encouraging to meet other teenagers interested in promoting acceptance and equality," said Young, a senior at AHS.

At the retreat, students widened their knowledge of hate crimes and social injustices that exist in the world through listening to speakers, including survivors of the Japanese Internment Camps and an adolescent Muslim who spoke of her personal experiences after Sept. 11.

The students also learned through attending movies and presentations, and participating in discussions and experiential exercises. In one exercise, called the privilege line, each student stood in a line on the lawn and would take a step forward or a step back depending on whether or not they had experienced a scenario described by administrators.

"The privilege line was really eye opening. At the end, you could see who was more privileged. It really made you think of how much you had and others didn't," said Lowry of his favorite part of the retreat.

The programs' mission, explained the NCCJ, is "to cultivate and train a diverse corps of students to act as peer leaders and fight bias, bigotry, and racism in their schools by encouraging and inspiring others to be open-minded through creative programs and projects."

Eventually NCCJ hopes to bring its message of tolerance and acceptance to every student in Massachusetts. At the close of the retreat, the AHS students selected racism as it applies to minorities getting into higher level classes and sexism as it relates to appearance as two issues that they found to be most evident at the high school.

"We noticed that a lot of students at AHS seem to judge each other solely on the basis of appearance," said Young. "Since appearance is so unimportant, we want to help students at AHS to overcome those prejudices."

The group will now hold weekly meetings along with staff advisers Kate Cremens-Basbas and Elinor Molina, where they will address ways to educate the entire student body about these issues and aid them in becoming more open-minded and aware of the social injustices that surround them.

"When we look at our school, we think it is a safe place," said Cremens-Basbas. "As we look at issues of hate crimes, discrimination, and harassment, we can look at it in a proactive way and keep our school a safe place."

"I am very proud of the many students who have taken initiative to stop the hate," said Jane Perlov, the executive director of public safety for the state of Massachusetts. "By acting as peer leaders, [these] students can help change the school environment."

AHS wins big in mastery contest

More than 1,800 students from the classes of 2001 and 2002 received the second annual Stanley Z. Koplik Certificate of Mastery Award for high academic achievement, education officials announced Jan. 7.

In addition, officials say there are more than 21,500 current juniors and seniors now eligible to apply for the 2002 award.

The Certificate of Mastery, developed as part of the 1993 Education Reform Act, is given to students for outstanding performance on assessment tests, in addition to success in competitions and student publications.

Recipients who enroll in a Massachusetts public college or university receive a merit-based four-year tuition waiver from the Board of Education, a value of approximately $700 to $1,700 per year. In order to keep the waiver throughout their faux years of school, students are required to maintain a minimum grade point average of 3.3.

In all, 1,859 students from 214 high schools across the state received the 2001 award. Of that total, 1,036 are members of the class of 2002, 818 are from the class of 2001, and five are from the class of 2000.

Several high schools had 25 or more recipients, including: Acton-Boxborough 60, Chelmsford 31, Lexington 34, Lincoln-Sudbury 27, Arlington 13, Bedford 11, Belmont 16, Billerica 12, Burlington 11, Concord-Carlisle 11, Reading 21, Stoneham 13, Westford Academy 7, Wilmington 3, Winchester 17, Woburn 6.

New band has own sound

BY AMY DIMASI
CORRESPONDENT

Searching to hear some fresh music that's not like everything else on the radio? Two 19-year-olds — Patrick Balthrop and Dede Booth — have teamed up to create a unique band called Patrick Balthrop with a sound all their own.

Balthrop, the lead singer and guitarist, attends Berklee College of Music and Booth, who plays percussion, attends Northeastern University and is a lifelong Arlington resident. They met last year at Northeastern University, which they both attended at the time, and discovered that both were music industry majors.

Balthrop gave Booth a copy of his demo and Booth said the second she heard it she thought "this is a different sound of music and I definitely want to be a part of it."

They've been playing together ever since. The two have been playing music for many years and aspire to become professional musicians. Balthrop began playing guitar in seventh grade.

"The guitar was the first instrument where I could fully express myself," said Balthrop. "It's like my best friend."

Booth has played drums since she was 8 years old and formed a band with friends called Indigenous Grooves when she attended Arlington High School.

"I've always felt like I was born to play the drums," she says.

The unique sound of the band comes from their diverse influences. Among these are progressive rock, folk and jazz. However, Balthrop describes their music as "unique, it purely comes from the heart."

"We're all about passion," added Booth. "Everything is passionate for us. Practicing and performing, it all drives us to play."

The band's mission is to reach out to people and make them aware of the social politics that are relevant to today's world. The music is "lyrically political and melded with poppy, catchy, melodic form," described the duo.

They call themselves "two 19-year-olds leading music in a new direction" and said "we're simply trying to make people aware of the gray issues that are hidden from society and should be exposed."

The band has played at Northeastern University's "After Hours" coffeehouse and can be seen Tuesdays at Club Passim's open mic night in Harvard Square. This is also broadcast live on the Internet at Radio-boston.com. They are also in the process of recording their first album.

If you'd like to be placed on the mailing list of Patrick Balthrop, have any questions, or would like to inquire about booking a gig, you can contact Patrick Balthrop via e-mail at 1981982@aol.com or cell phone at 617-283-9377. Dede Booth can be contacted via e-mail 1981982@aol.com.

Exhibit features disappearing Middle East

BY HELENE NEWBERG
CORRESPONDENT

Career counselor Kendall Dudley was used to telling clients to stay open to life's possibilities and follow their passions to uncover latent abilities and interests. But when his own passion for visual arts resurfaced almost four years ago, Dudley was nearly caught off guard.

"I had little control over this process. I would wake at four in the morning and start painting," he said.

As Dudley approached the age at which his mother had died, he found himself in emotional turmoil. Facing his emotions "awakened in me something I do a lot with my clients, which is to reconnect with those latent interests, which for my clients often fuel new career directions or add substance and depth to what they're currently involved in," he said. "It was frightening and wonderful, as I remembered what I had been saying to other people, which was just 'See where it goes.'"

Dudley has paintings and photographs on display at the First Parish Unitarian Universalist Church, 630 Massachusetts Ave. It is his second show; the first was at Starbuck's in Lexington Center. After having some work displayed at the church as part of a member's show last November, he was asked if he would like a solo show in the church gallery.

Many of his paintings, in both watercolor and oils, feature Middle Eastern architectural motifs. He now realizes that painting "was a way of trying to understand my feelings. I was reconnecting with an earlier time in my life. I served in the Peace Corps in Iran in 1968 and 1969. After that, I pursued an interest in Islamic architecture. As part of working towards a Ph.D. in Islamic architecture, I went back to Iran and Turkey and cataloged buildings. I took four-to-five thousand pictures of ancient buildings: homes, schools and mosques. Both fancy and simple architecture.

"A lot of those buildings may not exist anymore," he said, referring to the ravages of troubled times on the region's architectural treasures.

As his professional interest in the subject waned, he sold many of those images to museums and

"The resurgence of my interest came four years ago, with imagery from the Middle East so prevalent in the painting and then seeing how it linked with my interest in photography, sketching, and journaling," said Dudley.

Although he studied and worked as an economist with the obediently let go of that side of himself.

The dome shape that dominates much of his work, accompanied by warm colors, he called "ubiquitous" in Middle Eastern architecture.

"The dome shape covers houses, shrines, hospitals. When there's no wood, people build tional aspect of the structure," Dudley explained. He described it as a language he doesn't fully understand, but one that once he figures it out "maybe an alternate way of learning why I'm here and why both the struggle and the good stuff happen."

Having worked in the Middle East, Dudley's perspective has proven valuable. As he speaks on behalf of the Peace Corps, he helps dispel myths about Muslim culture and works to help Americans understand the differences in the two cultures.

"An emotional commitment to religion is a big differentiation," he said. "Many Muslims live in a religious culture."

He was able to see the emotional component contributing to satisfying lives and tries to bring that perspective back.

"In this country, we're often afraid of people who are emotionally involved with their faith," he said. "Without actually living there for awhile, it is very hard to get into those other shoes."

Dudley's photos, and paintings will be displayed until Feb. 23. The hours are 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Monday through Thursday; 9 a.m. to noon on Fridays; and 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on Sundays.

'The resurgence of my interest came four years ago, with imagery from the Middle East so prevalent in the painting and then seeing how it linked with my interest in photography, sketching, and journaling.'

Arlington residents Charlie Utter and Julie Schopper are in the Lexington Christian Academy's production of "Into the Woods."

Christian Academy presents 'Woods'

Lexington Christian Academy presents the award-winning Broadway musical sensation "Into the Woods."

This witty and imaginative production with music and lyrics by Stephen Sondheim and book by James Lapine will be presented on Thursday, Feb. 7 at 7:30 p.m., Friday, Feb. 8 at 7:30 p.m., and Saturday, Feb. 9 at 6:30 p.m.

With wit and humor for children and adults alike, Lapine presents the traditional fairy tale characters Cinderella and her prince, Jack and his beanstalk, Rapunzel, Sleeping Beauty, Snow White and Little Red Riding Hood along with Lapine's own creation, the Baker and his wife.

It's the couple's next door neighbor, the witch, who begins the chaps by granting the Baker and his wife's wish of having a child. In the woods the characters, each pursuing a goal, live out their stories at the same time, bumping into one another and entangling one another's narratives. "Into the Woods" arouses a wide variety of emotions.

The Lexington Christian Academy of "Into the Woods" is directed by Rhonda Lajoie and Rosemarie Manganello and is designed by Chip VanderBrug.

Tickets are $9.00 and can be purchased by calling 781-862-7850.

Performance explores issues facing teens

Parents of children of all ages, and stage and theater buffs will want to get a view of the struggles of adolescence during an upcoming evening with Michael Fowlin, actor and psychologist. On Monday, Feb. 4 at 7 p.m. "Mykee" Fowlin will return to Arlington High School's Lowe Auditorium, to present a theatrical piece that all grade 7 to 12 students have seen in school sometime over the past few years.

So, what's the buzz? "You Don't Know Me Until You Know Me" has received acclaim throughout the Arlington schools and now the Arlington High School Gay Straight Alliance brings the performance to the entire community.

This one person show deals with the issues of race, discrimination, violence prevention, personal identity, suicide, gender equity, homophobia and the emotional pain felt by a special education student. In this gripping, fast-paced 75-minute performance, Michael Fowlin slips in and out of nine characters, male and female, who share their stories. The characters share their stories in an often humorous, and at times heartbreaking manner.

"Jermaine" is a 6-year-old African-American who dreams of becoming president. His hyperactive learning style lands him in the principal's office. Though brilliant, he is targeted by teachers because he's not a "fold your hands and sit down" type of student.

"Octavius" is a star football player on his way to a Division I program with a full scholarship and a lot of other issues on his mind.

"Frank Sanders" addresses racial profiling and is tired of being labeled.

"Joey Schiavo" is the big man on campus who talks about making a difference and offers solutions to avoiding a "Columbine" at his school.

"Sabine" is a biracial young woman who explores these and gender issues and her personal experiences with harassment.

"Young Soon" is an Asian man who attempts to process how American he has to become to face less discrimination in corporate America.

"Tommy" is a mentally- and physically-challenged boy who thanks Joey for "seeing" him and painfully describes what he experiences when people make fun of him.

Fowlin earned his doctorate at Rutgers University and has combined his talents as actor, psychologist, and poet to address these difficult issues. The performance has been funded through a grant written and awarded to students in the Arlington High School Gay Straight Alliance through the Safe Schools program of the Department of Education.

Friends present 'The Night of the Iguana'

Arlington residents Ernest Stevens, Megan Finnerty and Hugo Mendez will be appearing in Arlington Friends of the Drama's production of Tennessee Williams' final play, "The Night of the Iguana" the first two weekends in February. It is being directed by Bob Eiland.

Ernest Stevens has been a member of A.F.D. for 35 years, and holds the distinction of being an Honorary Member. This his 19th role in a major production. His favorite roles were in our productions of "Damn Yankees," "The Odd Couple," and "Mame."

Megan Finnerty studied Anglo-Irish Drama at University College Cork in Ireland. Previous performances include "The Heidi Chronicles" and "Mother Courage and her Children."

Hugo Mendez is new to A.F.D. He has appeared on the stage in his native Mexico.

"The Night of the Iguana" is an emotionally turbulent masterpiece telling the story of the former Reverend Lawrence Shannon, who has been defrocked following a sexual escapade with a young girl. The clergyman turned tour guide takes a busload of pious Texan church ladies to an Eden-like spot along the coast of Mexico where he battles their suspicions about his past, his own demons, and a young girl whose affections could destroy him. His old ways come taunting again in the person of Charlotte Goodall, a sex-crazy teenage girl with her eye on the older man.

Set at the beginning of World War II, it starts with Shannon's arrival at a decaying hostelry. He is poised on the razor's edge of a complete nervous breakdown, seeking counsel and succor from an old friend who has died during his absence. What Shannon finds instead is Maxine, the earthy widow of his deceased friend, playing casual hostess to a group of German tourists. This adds to the major problems Shannon is having with the group of female American tourists he has led astray in order to reach this seaside retreat. But he also finds a kindred spirit, of sorts, in the person of the spinster Hannah Jelkes, who has arrived penniless at the same destination with her aged grandfather in tow.

There is, of course, an attraction between spinster and fallen clergyman, but as Williams' Night unfolds it becomes something far deeper and more complex than one expects. It skirts the purely sexual to probe deeper into solitude and cast lights into corners where questions of life, death, humanity, forgiveness and God have been swept.

Apparently inspired by actual events that transpired at an Aca-pulco hotel in 1940 and based on real people (the character of Maxine was modelled on Williams' landlady, while the defrocked and panic-stricken Rev. Shannon was an acknowledged self-portrait of the playwright) this is the story of aching loneliness and brief human communion that is both triumph and tragedy.

The show will be presented on Feb. 1, 2, 3, 8, 9, 10 at the AFD Theater, 22 Academy Street, Arlington Center. For tickets and information, call 781-646-5922 or visit the AFD Web site at afdttheatre.org

Spring writers, poets program schedule

The Arlington Center for the Arts is pleased to present the Writers & Poets program spring schedule. The series is free and open to the public. For more information, visit www.acarts.org or call 781-648-6220.

• Feb. 28 — Edith Shillue and Jean Trounstein
Arlington Center for the Arts, 41 Foster St.

Edith Shillue has worked and traveled extensively, most recently in Northern Ireland and Asia. She is the author of "Earth and Water: Encounters in Viet Nam" and the forthcoming memoir, "Peace Comes Dropping Slow: Conversations in Northern Ireland" (both University of Massachusetts Press). Her non-fiction work focuses on understanding of culture and history. She teaches at UMass/Boston.

Jean Trounstein is professor of humanities at Middlesex Community College. With grants from the Massachusetts Foundation for the Humanities, she developed a theatre arts program at Framingham Women's Prison, which is the basis of her book, "Shakespeare Behind Bars: The Power of Drama in a Women's Prison" (St. Martin's Press, 2001). Her personal essays and poetry have appeared in Working Class Writing and Poetry Motel, among others.

• March 21 — Cris Mazza and Ralph Lombreglia
Robbins Library, 700 Massachusetts Ave.

Cris Mazza is the author of several books, most recently "Girl Beside Him," a novel from FC2. Her other books include "Dog People," the PEN/Nelson Algren award-winning, "How to Leave a Country," and the critically-acclaimed "Is It Sexual Harassment Yet?" A native of San Diego, she lives outside Chicago and is a professor in the Program for Writers at the University of Illinois at Chicago.

Ralph Lombreglia wrote the story collections "Men Under Water" (Doubleday) and "Make Me Work" (Farrar, Straus & Giroux). A contributor to The New Yorker and The Atlantic Monthly, he is writing a novel for which he received a Guggenheim Fellowship and a Whiting Writer's Award. He founded the "Digital Culture" column for The Atlantic Monthly and with Kate Bernhardt, co-produced the award-winning CD-ROM, "A Jack Kerouac ROM-inbus" (Penguin Electronic and Mind In Motion).

• April 11 — Jeff Friedman and William Doeski

Robbins Library, 700 Mass. Ave.
Jeff Friedman is the author of two collections of poetry: "Scattering the Ashes" (Carnegie Mellon University Press) and "The Record-Breaking Heat Wave" (BkMk Press-University of Missouri-Kansas City). His poems have appeared in many literary magazines, including American Poetry Review, The Antioch Review, Manoa, New England Review, Boulevard, and Midstream. His third collection of poetry, "Taking Down the Angel," will be published by Carnegie Mellon University Press in fall 2002. He teaches creative writing at Keene State College.

William Doeski is professor of English at Keene State College in New Hampshire. He has published several poetry collections, three critical studies — "The Years of Our Friendship: Robert Lowell and Allen Tate" (University Press of Mis-issippi), "The Modern Voice in American Poetry" (University Press of Florida) and "Robert Lowell's Shifting Colors" (Ohio University Press) — and a best-selling textbook entitled "How to Read and Interpret Poetry" (Prentice-Hall). His essays, poetry, and reviews have been widely published. His most recent collection of poetry is "Another Ice Age" (Cedar Hill, 2002).

Musical Arts Society holding meeting

Musical Arts Society will hold its next meeting Sunday, Feb. 10 at the home of Dorothy Libardoni of Medford. The afternoon program includes selections for piano by Libardoni from composers Ludwig Von Beethoven, Zolenska Fibich, and Alexander Sorablin.

Lisa Park of Lexington, young violinist, accompanied by Sayuri Miyamoto, will play the first movement of a concerto in D by Tchaikovsky. Park is the recipient of the Musical Arts yearly award for outstanding youth musical accomplishment. She has studied at the New England Conservatory and the Longy School in Cambridge.

Selections by Bach and Handel will be performed by Joan Bandini of Lexington, soprano, and Gertrude DeCosta of Arlington, piano.

The program concludes with the Allegro molto from a Beethoven Sonata performed by Rose Marie Gabler of Lexington and Angela Gazza of Arlington using all four hands at the piano.

The Musical Arts Society is open to amateur and semi-professional musicians from the area who would enjoy performing for and with each other. New members are welcome.

For more information and directions to the meeting please call Janice Zanganoni at 781-696-9760.

Next meeting on March 17.

SURVEYING THE DAMAGES

While "damage" is defined as a loss or harm resulting from injury to a person, property, or reputation, "damages" refers to compensation. Damages are divided into a number of categories upon which the recovery may be based. "Compensatory damages" are for making a person "whole again" (put back into the position which existed before the harm or loss). One of two main categories of compensatory damages is "general damages," which is the amount needed to restore the fair market value of the property to its owner. The other is "special damages," which include documented out-of-pocket items (such as the need to rent or replace property) or the cost of services (such as the cost to have property valued or appraised).

Knowing your rights is the first step to success when it comes to legal matters. We are here to help you understand your rights. We conduct a general civil practice, concentrating in the areas of personal injury, business law, real estate, wills/trusts & estates, probate, family/divorce law, workers' compensation, bankruptcy, and civil litigation in both the State and Federal courts. Let us put 50 years of experience to work for you. We're conveniently located in Arlington Center.

Future damage that is certain to occur as the result of loss or harm is recoverable so long as there is a satisfactory basis for which the future, anticipated losses or harms can be determined.

We do more than just get you there!
